Story Writing

Read the given outline and create a story. Also mention Title and Moral of the story:

1)Outline: The mice very unhappy-the cat killed many of them-held a meeting to discuss how to get rid of the cat-various suggestion - no plan practicable. Then a young mouse suggested that a bell should be tied round the cat's neck - all welcomed the proposal with joy - an old mouse stood up ? asked who was going to tie the bell round the cat's neck?

Belling the Cat

In a certain house which was infested with mice, the cat found easy prey. The mice were very unhappy. The cat killed so many of them that they were all in great fear. At last they held a meeting to discuss how they could get rid of the nasty cat. One mouse said this, another said that but none of the plans was of any use. Then a young mouse stood up and said, 'The best thing we can do is to tie a bell round the cat's neck. Then when the cat comes we will hear the bell and get out of the way. All the mice shouted. 'Good! Admirable! Simple! Easy! They all thought it was a very good plan, indeed. But now an old mouse, who had all the while been listening to the proposals quietly, stood up and said, 'Yes, it is a very good plan, no doubt, but who will tie the bell round the cat's neck?' No one came forward to say that he would.

Moral: It is easy to suggest, but difficult to follow.

2)Outlines:-Colts going somewhere-Came a lion-colts were scared-one colt got the idea-informed about another lion in the well-saw his shadow-went away

An intelligent colt

Once some colts were going somewhere when suddenly a lion came from the other side. As soon as the colts saw the lion, they were scared for a while.

There was a well nearby, so one of those colts thought something and told the others to go ahead.

When the lion came near them, he ran to pounce but one of them said, don't try to eat any of us as my friend is also a lion and he lives in this well.

The lion didn't believe it and went to see it in the well.

As soon as he looked into the well, he saw his own shadow and began to roar. As a result, he believed that there was really a lion and went away from there.

All the colts became very pleased.

Moral:- we should never be afraid of trouble but face it.

3)Outlines:-snake and dog were close friends-snake stretched the body-Dog wanted to do the same- snake warned- dog stretched the body- died.

A dog and a snake

Two close friends, a dog, and a snake lived near each other in the forest. Since the snake was very long, other animals were afraid of it.

One day the snake was resting under a tree stretching out its whole body and the dog was passing by.

He saw the outstretched body of the snake and was surprised. Consequently, he also decided to stretch his body like a snake.

When the snake saw him doing this, it asked him, what are you doing?

The dog told the snake that he also wanted to stretch his body like you.

Then, the snake made him understand and advised him not to do so. Also, it told him that by doing so he might be harmed.

But, he didn't listen to the snake, and suddenly his stomach burst resulting in his death.

Moral:-we shouldn't do any unnecessary work without understanding the consequences.

4)Outline :-An oil merchant and a villager -the purse of money- Akbar's court over a trifle -oil merchant claimed the customer/villager claimed the purse -spectators became curious -the merchant- Birbal ordered a servant to bring a bowl of water- oil found floating- the real owner-the villager punished.

Clever Birbal

Once upon a time an oil merchant and a villager came to Akbar over a trifle money bag. In the court the spectators were quite curious how the matter would be resolved. The oil merchant stated that the bag was his. But the villager said that it belonged to him. The oil merchant said that the villager came to him to buy oil and he gave it to him. The villager said that he never visited his shop. In this way the case became very complicated to judge. Ultimately, Birbal ordered a servant to fetch some water in a bowl. Birbal put the purse in water. After some time, some oil was seen on the water. In this way it was proved that the purse belonged to the oil merchant and the villager was punished.

Moral:-Wisdom always wins.
